

Facebook and the International Office: Should we or shouldn't we?

Dr Shanton Chang, University of Melbourne

This session explores some of the issues around how international students communicate using digital media and the trends in communication. While the session will focus on Facebook, it also explores social networking in general. However, the key questions that will be asked include the following:

1. Why should International Offices consider using Facebook?
2. What concerns arise from using Facebook to interact with students (and for students to interact with each other)?
3. What are some strategies for building a constructive Facebook environment?

This interactive session will be an opportunity to share ideas and experiences
